

Quality of Instruction at APU School of Education

Compared to national average, the quality of instruction at Azusa Pacific University School of Education is considered by the IDEA rating on instructional effectiveness as unusually high.

Part 3 shows the percentage of classes with ratings at or above the converted score of the IDEA databases. Results are shown for both raw and adjusted scores. When this percentage exceeds 60%, the inference is that the Group's overall instructional effectiveness was unusually high.

Results in this section address the question:

- How does the quality of instruction for this Group compare to the national results?
