

Sean Curran
English Instructor and Writing Consultant

Education

MA in English. California State University, Northridge, 2011.

Specialization: Children's Literature

MA Capstone Project: Moral Normativity and Performativity in the Wizarding World.

BA in English. Azusa Pacific University, 2005.

Specialization: Literature

Senior Essay/Presentation: A Reevaluation of the Supposed Justice of the American Revolutionary War.

Teaching Experience

Azusa Pacific University. August 2021 to Present. Adjunct Instructor.

Writing 110—The Art and Craft of Writing (2021).

Citrus College. February 2015 to Present. Adjunct Instructor.

English 099—Introduction to Reading and Composition (2016).

English 103—Composition and Critical Thinking (2016-Present).

English 101—Reading and Composition (2015-Present).

California State University, Los Angeles. August 2016 to April 2017. Adjunct Instructor.

English 1010—Reading and Composition (2016 - 2017).

Pasadena City College. August 2012 to June 2013. Adjunct Instructor.

English 900—Writing Lab Co-Requisite Class for English 1A (2013).

English 901—Writing Lab Co-Requisite Class for English 100 (2013).

English 902—Writing Lab Co-Requisite Class for English 400 (2013).

English 100—Reading and Writing Skills (2013).

English 1A—Reading and Composition (2012).

English 400—English Essentials (2012).

California State University, Northridge. September 2008 to December 2010. Teaching Associate.

English 155--Approaches to University Writing (2010).

English 155--Freshman Composition (2008-2009).

Career Objective

To engage every student as though they were a fellow scholar, to know my material thoroughly and accurately without giving into hubris because of it, and to be the change I wish to see in the academic world.