

Hansel Room Policy

The Hansel room is for all faculty, students, and staff of the university to use primarily by reservation only. The room can be reserved by going to the front circulation desk or calling the Marshburn library at Ext. 3228. All reservations are subject to the policies outlined below.

- You may reserve up to three seats for an undetermined amount of time.
- There is no drink or food allowed.
- Room is a silent study area.
- Journals must stay in the library at all times (preferably in the Hansel room).

Please note if you reserve one seat, the room will be available to two other people who have also made a reservation for a seat.

We hope that these policies will allow all users of the Marshburn library to enjoy equal access to the services available.
