

THE PATHWAY FROM EDUCATION TO VOCATION

Becoming a Difference Maker in SOCIOLOGY

Why Study Sociology at Azusa Pacific University?

Sociology helps us understand how we relate to others in an increasingly diverse, polarized, and multicultural society. The subject matter ranges from the intimate family to the hostile mob, from crime to religion, and from the divisions of race and social class to the shared beliefs of a common culture. In fact, few fields have such a broad scope and relevance. In a world that is growing more and more complex economically, religiously, politically, and socially, sociologists play a critical role in helping our businesses, governments, and nonprofit organizations make decisions and understand the dynamics at play. As experts in human behavior coming from a Christian worldview, APU sociology majors are uniquely equipped to lead their organizations to interact with those of different countries and creeds in a compassionate, ethical manner.

In keeping with the principles of liberal arts education, the mission of the sociology program is to lead students in exploring the relationships between individuals, groups, social institutions, and culture; to facilitate the development of skills necessary for the study and critical analysis of these relationships from the perspectives of the Christian faith; and to develop a community of scholars who have a solid grasp of social theory and research who are prepared to systematically confront social problems and enact change at all levels of society.

YOU MIGHT CONSIDER A SOCIOLOGY MAJOR IF YOU:

- Are interested in social dynamics and human interactions
- Want a major that will prepare you for a wide range of careers
- Want to make a difference in the world through social change
- Want to explore the world's challenges through a biblical lens
- Want to better understand how cultural, economic and gender diversity impact social life
